The Stream of thought

I Love, I Love, to be alone,

For then the stream of thought
Flows <sup>on</sup> with its wild luxuriance on;
With <sup>my</sup> Lordy Burthens <sup>is</sup> brought!

There, on its headlong current borne,
Are well remembered things,
Sweet flow'rets from the past upturn'd,
That busy memory flings;

Bright Visions, that Entrance the Eye
With master-Works of art;
And Well Known forms that gliding by
Thrill to the inmost heart;

And there are Voices on the air;
And perfumes on the breeze,
That bear the mind to lands more fair
And softer climes than these

The Stream of Thought

Thus, as I stand beside the Stream,
And stretch my arms in Vain,
I feel the light Italian dream
Steal o'er my Soul again,
~~~~~~~~~

There not a floweret on the beach
Had met my passing eye,
Like those which, far beyond my reach,
Come whirling swiftly by,
~~~~~~~~~

Let come for Hope's prediction care,
While her delusions last, I'd rather
I'd rather sit with memory there
And commune of the past,

Come all our dear ones there?
Has every heart Come home?
Have we nothing now to fear
Till again from us they roam?
O! We trust that all is well -
That no grief With them is found;
No ill have they to tell;
Joy, joy! for the homeward bound!

Joy! for the Happy mother!
Joy! for the maiden dear!
The father, and the brother,
And the Lover true, are here!
The Ship is nearing fast, -
Let us spread the tidings round;
Our friends have Come at last;
Joy, joy! for the homeward bound!

The Lilly.

We are lilies fair,

- 1 The flower of Virgin Light,
Nature held us forth and said,
"Lo! my thoughts of White."

Ever since then, angels!

- 2 Hold us in their hands;
You may see them Where they take for pictures their sweet stand.

Like the gardens angels

- 3 Hold us in their hands, also do we seem,
And not the less for being crowned
Within a golden dream.

Could you see & know us

- 4 The Enamored air,
you would think it pale With bliss
To hold a thing so fair.

The Impatient

"Why stays he thus? he would be here;
If His Love Equaled mine;
He thinks had I one fond caged dove,
I would not let it pine."

---

Oh! He comes no more to see me,
(He called me His Wild flower)
I hear that winning sound no more,
But, oh! I feel its power.

---

I'm weary with my Watchings,
Because I watch in vain,
But Woman's heart must suffer much
In solitude and pain.

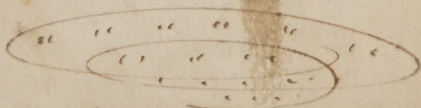

---

What is it keeps him from me?

Oh! if my eyes are dim -

He might have known - 'twas Weariness in watching long for him.

3 And if my cheek has faded,
Kind words could make it bloom;
His voice could call my spirit back,

6 But now I'll weep no more —
Why should I weep in vain?
Oh! robe me in a garb of pride,
Decked me with jewell'd chain —

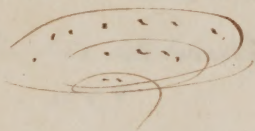

7 I'll seek in halls of splendor,
Forgetfulness and scorn,
The blood of my own haughty line
Wash ill its falsehood home.

8 The red rose on my forehead
Shall brightly bloom at eve;
Farewells, farewells, false love of mine,
No longer will I grieve.

1 Oh, Sacred mercy! Can it be;
That all these damning Words are true;
That man for self Would thus commit
A deed as dark as fiends e'er knew?

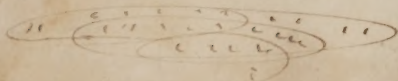

2 Demons there are in human form;
Who round us ever dwell;
Who, for a "Little paltry Gold,"
Their Souls' birthright Would sell!—

3 And Would Wrong the Widow of her mite,
And Steal the Orphan's Bread;
And rend the portals of the tomb,
To rob the Shrouded dead!—

Then mock the mother's cry,
And laugh, When Gush'd the purple gore
In death's strong agony!

A Lament.

1 There was an Eye whose partial glance
 Could never my numerous failings see;
 There was an Ear that still untired
 Could listen to kind praise of me.

2 There was a heart Time only made
 For me with fonder feelings burn'd;
 3 And which whenever I was moved,
 Still longed and pined for my return.

4 There was a lip which always breathed
 5 Even short farewells with tones of sadness;
 There was a voice whose eager sound
 My welcome spoke with heartfelt gladness.

6 There was a mind, whose vigorous powers
 7 On mine its fostering influence threw;
 And called my humble talents forth,
 Till thence its clearest rays it drew.

There Was A Love that oft for me
With Anguish fears Would overflow;
And Wept And prayed for me, And sought
From future ills to guard - but now

That Eye is Closed, And nd That Ear;
That lip And Voice are mute forever!
And Cold that heart of faithful Love,
Which death Oblone from mine Could sever!

And Lost to me that Ardent mind,
Which Loved my Varied tasks to see;
And, Oh! of All the praise I gained,
This Was the dearest far to me!

Now I, Unloved, Uncherished, Alone,
Life's dreary Wilderness must tread,
Till He Who Loves the broken heart,
In mercy bids me join the dead.

But Father of the Fatherless;

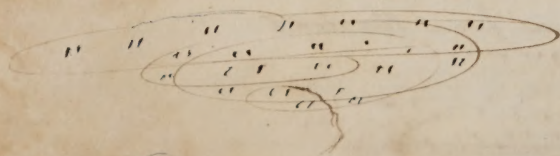

Oh! How Thad heareth The Orphan's Cry,
And dwellest With the contrite heart;
As Well as in Thy place on high—

Oh Lord! though like a faded leaf,
That's severed from its parent tree,
I struggle down Life's stormy tide,
That awful tide Which leads to Thee!—

Still, Lord! to thee the voice of praise
Shall spring triumphant from my breast:
Since, though I tread a weary way,
I trust that he i-mourn is blest!

The Cot of the Hill.

How blest to the weary yon low cottage look,
With its forrest, and meadows, its gardens and brooks;
Secluded from folly, from falsehood and fame,
And its nead quid aspect forever the same.

Yes, dear to my view is this little retreat,
Where inanimate things thus harmoniously meet.
And each soft shade of green With the pure beams <sup>White</sup> of Makes all the illusions that steal on the sight.

How sacred, to wander, untroubled, at will,
All heaven so glorious, all earth so still,
While days with full splendour and fresh verdure crown
Or nights holy silence breathes perfumes around.

With the troubles of life e'er permit me to roam,
In search of a cottage like this, for my home,
Where nature in grandeur and silence pervades,
And speaks to the Soul from the depths of her shades

They Came

Adieu to the haunts of the light hearted throng,
 And joy to those kind souls who cheered me along,
 And peace, if there's any, whose bosom, like mine
 Can count each false joy of the worldling's decline:

Farewell to the city, farewell to its war,
 I pity its victims, its woes I deplore,
 And my last humble supplicant of heaven is still,
 To smooth away life in some cot of the Hill

My time might be spent as the seasons depart,
 In weeding my garden, in weeding my heart;
 Though useless to many, I hope some would be yet,
 Who'd hallow my grave with a gratefull regret.

Oh! Who that has strove in the world's sordid chain,
 But would fly from the din of the heartless and vain,
 And seek for a streamlet's peace, by whose brink,
 Some pure drops might bathe off the spots from each link

Resignation

1 See Resignation how divine her look
Humbly she blesses God for What is given.
And Without searching fates mysterious look
Calmly submits to the decrees of heaven

2 How beautiful how charming is her air
What pencil ead her sweetness paint?
But if she Weeps it is a silent tear
She heaves no sigh and utters no complaint

3 Sweet Resignation hail and in my mind
Forever fix thy mild and placid reign
That to heavens decree may be resigned

And he shall purify the sons of Levi that they may

Written on the blank leaf of a Lady's Bible

When thy beauty shall fade, as tis certain it must,
And thy youth as it flies steals the bloom which it gave,
When the cold hand of death shall consign thee dust,
And the wild flower bloom on the side of thy grave.

If this volume of Heaven has been thy delight,
If thy offerings of praise to its God has ascended,
If thy prayers have encircled the throne of his might,
And the tears of repentance and love thou hast blended,

Thy bark as it floats to the regions of truth,
Shall know neither danger, nor doubting, nor fear,
For the God thou hast sought in thy moments of youth,
Shall seek and support thee when danger is near.

He will guide thee unhurt to eternity's shore,
And anchor thee safe in the haven of rest,
Thou shalt sleep in his bosom to wander no more
From the house of thy Father, the home of the blest.

The dew drop is never so clear
As when morning's first rays see it glisten.
And music is never so dear
As when to its last notes we listen.

Though bright may be raptures first morn
And its parting adieu ever sweeter?
The enjoyment existing between
Is vision and vanishes faster?

We never know how we have loved
Till what we have loved has departed.
For the strength of affection is proved
By the joyful and desolate hearted.

Our pleasures are bound but to die
They are all like to our hearts but to sever.
And stars shooting down a dark sky
Shine loudest when faded forever.

Sympathy

9842

Ah! Why was the tear formed to flow
O'er the anguish it cannot retrieve
O'er the sigh for the victim of woe
When the means are too scant to relieve?

Must the bosom of sympathy mourn?
Must friendship and virtue refine?
Must the heart, that is tender be torn?
When its passion is pure and divine?

Yes, pity must often befriend,
And the heart that has feeling must grieve
When the hand is forbid to extend,
And the wish is the all we can give.

But the heart that has wishes to bless
Reflects the same pleasure that's given;
Ah! the tear that drop at distress,
Is an alms that's accepted in Heaven.

To him whose soul is fraught with woe.
Who tastes no pleasures here below:
Within whose wounded broken heart
Sorrow has deep infused her dart

Yet if in wisdoms pleasant ways
Man spends his bright and youthfull days
The memory of the past will shed
Its gratefull odours round his head.

Truth.

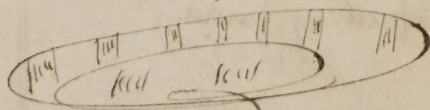

The worth of truth no tongue can tell,
I will do to buy but not to sell;
A Large estate that soul hath got ~~My~~ Who buys truth and sells it not.

Truth like a diamond shines most fair
More worth than pearls or rubies are.
More rich than gold or silver coin,
O may it always in us shine.

O happy they who in their youth
Are brought to know and love the truth.
For none but those whom truth makes free
Can ever enjoy true liberty.

Truth like a girdle let us wear
And always keep it clean and fair
And never let the tale be told
That truth by us was ever sold

The Orphans Prayer

1 The frozen trees in moonshine glitter
The midnight hours has long been past
Oh! me! the wind blows cold and bitter
I sink beneath the piercing blast

2 In every vein life seems to languish
Their weight no more my limbs can bear
But no one soothes the Orphans anguish
And no one hears the Orphans prayer

3 Hark! hark for sure some footsteps near me
Advancing press the drifted snow
I die for food, oh stranger hear me
I die for food, some alms bestow

4 You see no guilty wretch implore you
No wanton kneels in feigned despair
No famished orphan kneels before you
Oh! grant the famished Orphans prayer.

May it least afford relief
That those thou lovest partake it too.

Though weeks have passed unnumbered by
Thy presence has not taught<sup>us</sup> yet;
So fed with thee satiety
On part with thee without regret.

But in exact proportion too
Our past enjoyment presents pain

 But for our regrets a pledge shall give;
 That days and hours too swiftly flow
 In cherished memory long shall live.

 The happy ones that we have spent;
 Though grave let grief not darken it
 With aught like thankless discontent.

'Tis something to have shared so much
 Of joy that friends alone can know;
 'Tis more to feel we part as such

Thou art Oh God! the life and light.
Of all this wondrous world we see
Its glow by day its smile by night
Are but reflections caught from thee.
Wherever we turn, thy glories shine
And all things fair and bright are thine.

When sorrow over the spirit steals,
 And life has scarce a charm to show;
 When sadness every joy conceals,
 Or age presents the cup of woe;

What then can sooth the feeling heart

That finds its early joys decay?

What power can then assuage its smart

And chase the mental gloom away?

To sweeten care and point to Heaven;

That boon - the bosom of a Friend!

The Gospel.

The Gospel - O! how blest the hour
When first I learned its saving power,
When first I knew that Christ from Heaven,
By God's pure love for man, was given.

What tongue can tell its sacred worth?
Good will to man and peace on earth,
The burden of the angelic song,
And Heavenly hosts the strain prolong

Art thou an hungered or a thirst?
Here's food and drink, and peace and rest,
Enough for every sorrowing one
Oppressed with grief - come hither, come

Dost thou in weary bondage pine
Beset with cares, and sin, and crimes?
Come learn of me, says Christ and find
Rest to your souls, peace, sweet and kind.

Oh! for an angel's lofty lay,
To sing the joys of endless day,
The joys that from this fountain flow,
A cure for every sin and woe.

Embrace the gospel - in it live,
The richest boon that heaven can give,
The sunest pledge, to mortals given,
That there's a home for all in heaven. C.O.
The End.

Oh may the gospel be our chief study in this world below that we may be prepared to meet the Lord in the world above is the sincere prayer of

Through the skies when the thunder is heard.
The child to its parents will flee;
Thus, amidst the rebukes of the world
I turn, oh my father to thee!

In vain would they bid me retire,
In vain would they silence my prayer.
Thy eyesight - thy life I require -
I seek to be snatched from despair

In this valley of sorrow, and strife,
Prayer shall rise with my earliest breath;
It shall mix with the business of life,
And soften the struggles of death

Amen by James

Lines Addressed To Two Brothers.

Nature has been profuse in gifts,
Of rich and rare, to you;
Has formed you both of kindred souls
And made you friends—most true.

Cherish long this heavenly tie,
This golden link of love—
It will all others charms supply—
It's far all price above.

Friendship is not an airy name,
My heart has found it true;

Reflections on the Past

"I've grasped the ~~work~~" its transient beam
 Shining such a radiant over my way -
 So bright, so beautiful a dream -
 How could I think it would pass away
 But how how vain! its very light
 Was full of unrelenting pain and blight

The Cross! O that dear mournful word
 How many precious hopes and given
 Ambitious hearts who had thought and stirred
 What visions of an opening heaven
 Dear cross to thy blessed name I flee
 There is no change nor blight in thee

Ode To Happiness.

I've sought thee in the battle field
Where warrior steeds were prancing,
Where quick the martial squadron wheeled,
And polished helms were glancing:

I've sought thee in the lofty dome
Of cloister school and college,
And hoped I there had found the home
Of virtue, peace and knowledge:

I've sought thee in the sacred fane,
Where holy men were preaching,
And pondered the fious strain
Their hallowed <sup>deep</sup> lips were teaching:

But never, since, oh meek-eyed maid!
I left my native mountain,
Where first my youthful footsteps strayed
By woodland, glen and fountain—

Could I, in all my wanderings, trace

Human happiness has no perfect security but freedom; freedom none but virtue;
virtue none but knowledge; and neither freedom

Christian religion. PRES. QUINCY — — —

The Young Mutineer.

109

This sun rose unclouded, and brightly it shone,
In the pride of the morning; it promised a noon
Of glory and gladness. It sunk to the flood,
In blackness and blindness, and blasted by blood.
Disowned and dishonored, its last gloomy glare,
Was shed on the grave of the Young Mutineer.

Tho' beardless his cheek, yet his was a soul,
That knew not not a master, that brooked not controul;
Tho' beardless his cheek, yet his was a hand
Unacquainted with daggers; a voice to command.
His eye that never wept, and a heart without fear,
Were the pride and boast of the Young Mutineer.

He lies on the beach of a lone desert isle.
His dirge the green waves are chaunting the while,
As they in wild tumult fell o'er his head,
And wash the high rock that marks the wet bed,
There lie, with a heart that never knew fear,
The mangled remains of the Young Mutineer.

next page

The Same

He lies on the beach, the cold waters beside,
 And dreadful and dark was the death that he died,
 No mother mourns o'er him; no fond fair one we 4 There far from the land of his fathers he sleeps,
 But the stormy winds whistles, the wild birds
 O'er the wet sandy grave of the young Mutineer.

He lies on the beach, by a comrade in guilt;
 His forehead was cloven, his best blood was spilt,
 The cries of his victims had risen to God,
 5 And their wailings ~~were~~<sup>were</sup> quenched in the murderer's blood.
 He felt - none mourned their captain, none shed a tear
 O'er the wet sandy grave of the young Mutineer.

He lies on the beach - with a heart rending yell,
 Horrid and despairing, he sunk down to Hell,
 His glazed eyes in horror were turned up to Heaven,
 6 His last yell to the skies, in wild echo was given -
 In vain it ascended, no mercy was there,
 To cheer the dark dying of the young Mutineer.

The Grave

47

111

He lies on the beach, where <sup>the</sup> weeds and the shells,
Mark the bounds of the sea when in tumult it swells,
They scooped him a grave, and there laid him ~~the~~ rest;
And heaped the wet sand on his bare bloody breast,
And they rolled a huge stone and planted it there,
To mark the lone grave of the young Mutineer.

In years that are coming, the seaman shall tell
Of murders and murdered, the murderer's yell,
The tale the lone watches of night shall beguile;
As they sail near the shore of that desolate isle,
And their beacons shall be as they thitherward steer,
The dark rock on the grave of the young Mutineer.

I'm with you once again, my friends,
No more my footsteps roam;
Where it began my journey ends,
Amid the scenes of home,

No other clime has skies so blue,
Or streams so low and clear;
And where are hearts so warm and true
As these that meet me here

In some secluded spot,
Nor tell the world my weary race
But let me rest, forgot.

Then, let the heart to friendship true
Beside my grave appear
When evening shades her silent veil
And I will bow the tear

But let my memory alone
Appear upon the shroud
There in the fairest letters shown
Appears true friendship's part

This day finds me still rushing madly towards the dark abyss of sin, and left guilty than I was one year ago, every day brings me deeper, and still deeper, in that pit, from which I should be striving to extricate myself. Oh Lord from this time forward may I be permitted to draw nigh unto Thee in serious meditation, and prayer.
And wilt thou be pleased to forgive my sins and lead me from the path of temptation and deliver me from evil for Thine be the power the kingdom and glory forever and ever Amen
